The latest NDIS data is now available on the new-look NDIS Data and Insights website .

This release includes new and refreshed data, and four detailed reports on the following focus areas:

- Analysis of participants by gender
- People with an intellectual disability in the NDIS
- People with disability and their NDIS goals
- Market monitoring

Since July 2019, the NDIA has released a range of valuable data for public information and use. This data is part of the Government's commitment to demonstrate full data transparency of the NDIS with the Australian community.

The NDIA uses this data to better understand participants and the markets, so we can continue to make decisions that improve outcomes for participants.

The Agency has improved the NDIS Data and Insights website to make it easier for users to access the data and insights important to them, and will continue to improve the site, with a focus on accessibility.
