Submissions on the Interventions for children on the autism spectrum paper closed at 10am AEST on Friday 14 May 2021. We will publish a post-consultation report after we have read through the submissions.

The Interventions for children on the autism spectrum paper outlines the:

- funding framework developed to support evidence based practice, and balance the needs of families and children, with experienced clinicians and professionals
- funding levels of support for early intervention (capacity building) based on the functional capacity and assessed needs of the child reflecting all that we know at this stage
- holistic approach that considers inclusion, participation, non-funded and funded interventions
- lifespan approach that considers the changes in goals and aspirations as a child receives positive benefits from early intervention support

This consultation process will help us understand your views so that we can:

- update existing policy and operational guidance
- refine policy and operational guidelines
- improve guidance for parents and carers
- work more effectively with parents, caregivers and other professionals.
