What is a conflict of interest?

A conflict of interest is when something in a person's life makes it harder for them to be fair.

Conflicts of interest can take away choice and control from participants.

Participants are people with disability who take part in the National Disability Insurance Scheme (NDIS).

What do plan managers need to do?

A plan manager is someone who manages a participant's funding.

Funding is money from an NDIS plan that pays for services and supports.

A plan manager can help participants:

- find out about conflicts of interest
- manage conflicts of interest.

Plan managers need to:

- follow the law

- tell the truth.

Plan managers need to tell participants about conflicts of interest.

This means they need to tell participants if they are connected to other providers.

Providers support people with disability by delivering a service.

Plan managers also need to tell participants:

- which supports their organisation delivers

- what they are doing to manage conflicts of interest.

Plan managers should not let conflicts of interest affect their services.

For example, a plan manager should not pay themselves for the services they provide.

Plan managers need to keep records about their conflicts of interest.

Plan managers can do this using the Conflicts of Interest form on our website.

www.ndis.gov.au/providers/provider-compliance/conflicts-interest-ndis-provider-market

Plan managers need to make sure their supports:

- are fair
- meet participants' needs.

What can participants do about conflicts of interest?

There are things participants can do if they:

- find a conflict of interest
- think there might be a conflict of interest
- think that their plan manager isn't doing what's best for them.

Participants can talk to someone they trust, like a friend or family member.

Participants can also talk to their my NDIS contact.

A my NDIS contact is the main person that participants and their families can contact about the NDIS.

Participants should read all the documents plan managers give them about their supports.

Talking to plan managers

Participants can talk to their plan manager about conflicts of interest.

They can bring someone they trust when they talk to their plan manager.

Participants might want to ask their plan manager questions about conflicts of interest.

For example, participants can ask:

- Do you have a plan about how you manage conflicts of interest for me to read?

- Can you tell me about other providers I can get support from?

- Are you or your organisation connected to the providers you have suggested?

How can participants make a complaint?

Participants can make a complaint if they are worried about conflicts of interest with their NDIS supports.

A complaint is when you tell someone that something:

- has gone wrong
- isn't working well.

Participants can make a complaint to the NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission (NDIS Commission).

The NDIS Commission makes sure people with disability who take part in the NDIS:

- are safe
- get good services.

You can make a complaint to the NDIS Commission if:

- your plan manager is not doing the right thing

- you feel unsafe.

You can call the NDIS Commission.
