
The NDIA established the Self-Management Advisory Group in 2024. The Group provide advice to the NDIA on changes to the NDIS that impact people who self-manage their plans. This includes advice on implementing NDIS Reform and the Self-Management Policy.

The NDIA is committed to working with people with disability and the disability sector to strengthen self-management practices and improve how self-managed participants experience the NDIS.

This is at the core of our approach to co-designing reform.

This is why the NDIA has established a Self-Management Advisory Group.

The Self-Management Advisory Group will help shape how the NDIA co-designs and engage with the disability community about changes that impact self-management.

Membership

Membership includes self-managed participants, child representatives and nominees, as well as representatives from the disability sector and the Independent Advisory Council.

Members are:

- Prue Coroneos, NDIA, Co-Chair
- Dr George Taleporos, Independent Advisory Council member
- Sam Paor, Independent Advisory Council member
- Marita Walker, Subject matter expert
- Leanne Pearman, Australian Inclusion Group
- Jane Wardlaw, Participant representative
- Ken Griffiths, Participant representative
- Sylvana Mahmic, CEO Plumtree
- Andrew Fairbairne, Physical Disability Australia
- Dariane McLean, Inclusion Australia

Meeting summaries

November 2024 meeting summary

The Self-Management Advisory Group met for the first time on Friday 29 November 2024.

Read the full November 2024 meeting summary.

This page current as of 19 December 2024