

All Australians with disability have access to a range of other government services including education, health, employment, justice and family support.

Supports may be different under the NDIS compared to when they were delivered by state or territory governments. The NDIS is a new way of doing things that gives participants the ability to choose and control the supports they use to get involved in their community, workplace, and social life. Learn how the NDIA and other state and territory governments are working together.

NDIS and COVID-19

NDIS and early childhood \(External website\)

NDIS and mental health \(External website\)

NDIS and aged care

NDIS and child protection and family support

NDIS and transport

NDIS and employment

NDIS and justice

NDIS and school education

NDIS and higher education

NDIS and the health system

NDIS and housing

NDIS and hearing

NDIS and disability services

This page current as of
29 November 2021

All Australians with disability have access to a range of other government services including education, health, employment, justice and family support.

Supports may be different under the NDIS compared to when they were delivered by state or territory governments. The NDIS is a new way of doing things that gives participants the ability to choose and control the supports they use to get involved in their community, workplace, and social life. Learn how the NDIA and other state and territory governments are working together.

NDIS and COVID-19

NDIS and early childhood (External website)

NDIS and mental health (External website)

NDIS and aged care

NDIS and child protection and family support

NDIS and transport

NDIS and employment

NDIS and justice

NDIS and school education

NDIS and higher education

NDIS and the health system

NDIS and housing

NDIS and hearing

NDIS and disability services

This page current as of
29 November 2021