

The NDIA is partnering with the Centre for Health Economics and Monash University to develop a wellbeing index for NDIS participants.

The wellbeing index will complement the existing NDIS and Australia's Disability Strategy Outcomes Framework by providing a preference-based summary outcome measure to assess the impacts of supports and other initiatives on the wellbeing of people with disability.

The project is being delivered over 2021 to 2023.

To find out more about this research you can email our research team at research@ndis.gov.au

This page current as of 30 August 2022