27 January 2023

You can now read our updated participant booklets in 17 languages, including five new languages, on the NDIS website.

We have also added digital braille and Auslan video translations for the first time.

The new languages are Assyrian, Dari, Khmer, Korean and Turkish. These resources were created based on participant feedback and research on current and future needs.

The other languages are Arabic, Chinese (Simplified), Chinese (Traditional), Filipino (Tagalog), French, Hindi, Greek, Italian, Macedonian, Samoan, Spanish and Vietnamese.

Download translations, including Auslan, from the languages page, and digital braille booklets from the booklets and factsheets page.

The booklet updates include legislation changes, simpler and more consistent content, and information on the my NDIS app.

The booklets are a valuable resource for participants, their families and carers, and people with disability wanting to apply for the NDIS, understand how a plan is created and use their NDIS plan.

We value your feedback. Please email marketing@ndis.gov.au.

Related articles

Update to key participant booklets

Date
29 July 2022

Language interpreting services

Date
1 May 2019

Helping participants improve their digital security

Date
9 July 2024

Read more news